Seller's failure to assert a written claim for adjustment within 30 days after Seller's receipt of Buyer's change order shall

23. CONFLICT MINERALS.

(a) On July 21, 2010, the Dodd-Frank Wall Street Reform and Consumer Protection Act was signed into law. The Dodd-Frank Act and related U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission rules require certain companies to disclose the extent to which the products they manufacture or contract to manufacture contain so called conflict

minerals sourced from mines in the Democratic Republic of the Congo (DRC) or adjoining countries. Conflict minerals include tantalum, tin, tungsten and gold, which are used in many electronic components and computer products.

(b) As a leading manufacturer of flow, level, temperature and pressure switches and meters, FCI promotes the traceability of these minerals and the transparency of the supply chain. FCI firmly believes that its customers should be fully informed about the products they purchase. While FCI, as a manufacturer, is not able to certify as to the country of origin of the minerals contained in the products manufactured by FCI's suppliers, FCI is committed to working with its customers to supply products that meet the customer's specifications. Important information on the use of conflict minerals in the technology supply chain is being compiled by the Electronics Components Industry Association (ECIA) and the Electronics Industry Citizenship Coalition (EICC). This information may be viewed at www.eciaonline.org.

(c) FCI does not directly purchase any conflict minerals from any source and endeavors not to purchase products that contain conflict minerals that directly or indirectly finance or benefit armed groups in the DRC or adjoining countries. FCI requires its suppliers to only source minerals from responsible sources. FCI fully understands the importance of this issue to its customers and is committed to supply chain initiatives and overall corporate social responsibility and sustainability efforts that work towards a conflict free supply chain. We require all of our suppliers to likewise support these efforts and make information on the origin of their product components easily accessible on their websites and through www.eciaonline.org.
